

YES, OPEN ALL THE BOOKS.

BUT DON'T TRY TO HUNT DUCKS WITH A BRASS BAND.

Twenty-seven suggestions will be made in the House of Representatives on Monday and Tuesday next, in connection with the investigation of the Department of the Treasury.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—The Democrats have had possession of the Federal Administration for two and a half years, and are now commencing to talk about opening the books. The cause of this conversion is the fact that the financial clerk of the Patent Office and his accounts were discovered to be $25,000 or more short. In a memorandum in his desk the committee of which "my dear Hubbell" was Chairman figures for several thousand dollars, for political assessments. This discovery was made by the Democrats. The representatives of the Democratic party in the House of Representatives, but now, the horse having been stolen, the door is to be closed, and it is announced in some of the newspapers which aspire to be organs of the Administration that the accounts of all the disbursing officers of the departments are to be examined. There are several gentlemen in the clerical chairs are resting over a charged miasma. Mr. Roscoe Conkling, who in his public career knew something about politics, was accustomed to say that it was not wise to hunt ducks with a brass band. The political managers of that time did not know the difference between the ducks and the books. They hunted for the ducks, but they did not find them. The Democrats have been at the head of the Interior Department and of the Patent Office for two and a half years. It was not known that the financial clerk of the Patent Office was a defaulter for nearly $25,000, nearly half of which was on account of an assessment wrung from the clerks by the Hubbell Congress. banking house in London, and for the sale of some $400,000 for ships, but the public never learned the whole truth about it.

Twenty-fourth—There was a quantity of war material sold, the aggregate of which was several millions of dollars. How that money ever got into the hands of the Government is a mystery.

Fiftieth—There were at one time forced balances made in the official statements of the Treasury Department. What was the result of this? Was there anything that it was worth while to make out? Was there anything that it was worth while to make out? Was there anything that it was worth while to make out?

A CLUB OF MANUFACTURERS.

ORGANIZED CAPITAL IN OPPOSITION TO ORGANIZED LABOR.

PROVIDENCE, July 23.—The Slater Club, organized by the manufacturers of Rhode Island in opposition to the Knights of Labor, has now been in existence a little over one year. As the accounts of its purposes and workings have usually come from outside and unauthentic sources, a correspondent of THE SUN addressed himself for information to one of the members, a prominent manufacturer in the vicinity of Providence. That gentleman said, in substance, that he was under the impression that the Slater Club was organized to suppress the Knights of Labor. The club was organized only to sustain the manufacturing interests of the State against organized and unwarranted dictation. We take no cognizance, either friendly or otherwise, of the Knights. We simply assert our right to run our own business in our own legitimate way. There is no objection to any man or woman in our factory or any other Rhode Island factory, as far as I know, joining the Knights of Labor any more than joining the Foresters or the Freemasons, or the A. O. U. W. asked the writer, "how do you propose to carry out the purpose of your organization?"

Heavy Losses to German Investors in Russian Bonds.

BREITENBURG, July 23.—The campaign against Russian securities has abated, but the belief on the Bourse is that the cessation of the newspaper attacks is a mere armistice. The renewal of the raid is expected to be the result of Russia's economic policy and partly on the power of the small German capitalists having Russian investments to stand a further strain. The war has already taught Russia that Germany has effective means of retaliation for the hostile tariffs and commercial restrictions imposed upon German trade and traffic. Russia's Ambassador's return to Berlin on Wednesday was unexpected at the embassy, and was due solely to the alarm felt at St. Petersburg over the depreciation of Russian securities, and the stoppage of Russian credit at all European finance centres.

QUEEN VICTORIA REVIEWED GREAT BRITAIN'S FLEET.

SPRITHEAD, July 23.—Portsmouth and Spithead have been thronged for days past in anticipation of the jubilee naval review, fixed for this afternoon at Spithead. The crowds were immensely augmented this morning by the arrival of innumerable visitors from all parts of the country. The weather was perfect. Special trains brought down from London the Lords of the Admiralty, members of the House of Lords and the Commons, and numerous representatives of the foreign legations. Minister Phelps travelled in a special saloon coach, accompanied by his wife and Mrs. Loomis. In the same coach were Mr. Robert McLane, United States Minister to France; Mr. James J. M. Curry, United States Minister to Spain; Mr. W. H. Murray, United States Consul-General at London; Gen. Joseph B. Hawley, and others.
